At a minimum, the student requesting transfer credit must complete the Graduate Transfer Equivalency Form and provide a catalog description of the course, a course syllabus, a description of course content and the textbook used in order to have the course evaluated for acceptability as transfer credits

Academic Honesty

As an academic institution of merit and integrity, ECU affirms its commitment to the honesty and excellence of all academic work conducted by students. Academic dishonesty is a serious violation of academic procedure and the Student Code of Conduct and is subject to severe sanctions including suspension and expulsion.

The range of sanctions that may be given will be contingent on several factors, including:

- The decision of the faculty member making the charge
- Whether it is the student's first offense or a repeat offense; and
- The extent and nature of the offense. It is possible that a first offense may carry a penalty of suspension or expulsion. The University makes two primary demands of its students in the area of academic honesty:
 - a. That each individual exercise the utmost care in planning and preparing the work presented for academic consideration, and
 - b. Members of the academic community conscientiously ensure the validity and protect the integrity of academic work and the grades earned for such work.
